Arbitration case #24

Date: October 2026

Summary

The case involved a dispute between the Asiacell Communications PJSC (Asiacell) and AVyS Telecom S.A. en liquidacion (AVyS) over holdership of Internet Number Resources. The dispute arose when the RIPE NCC made the decision to revert transfers of Internet number resources registered with Asiacell to their previous holder, AVyS. This occurred based on the court ruling regarding the representation of AVyS which was declared insolvent.

Details of the case

In February and March 2022, the RIPE NCC processed two transfers of Internet Number Resources from AVyS to Asiacell based on the submitted transfer agreements.

In 2026, AVyS disputed these transfers, claiming that the person who signed the relevant transfer agreements on their behalf has not been authorised to do so. To support their claims, they presented the court ruling which confirmed the delegation of representation powers to an insolvency administrator.

Based on the provided documentation, the RIPE NCC reverted the transfers of Internet Number Resources to their previous holder, AVyS. Asiacell disputed this decision by initiating the RIPE NCC arbitration procedure against AVyS.

Arbitration Ruling

After evaluating the information provided by both parties, the arbiter rejected Asiacell's request to return the Internet Number Resources. The arbiter found that the transfers of Internet Number Resources were reverted in line with RIPE policies and RIPE NCC documented procedures.
